

Dr. Brendan Riley
Executive Director of Operations
Popular Culture Association/American Culture Association

Dear Brendan,

Thank you for your recent e-mail alerting me to my nomination for a second term on the governing board of PCA/ACA. I am delighted and honored to run.

PCA/ACA Background

I attended my first national PCA/ACA meeting in Detroit in April 1980 as a graduate student and have been to all but two ever since, missing only when I was overseas in visiting positions. My first faculty appointment was in Radio-Television-Film at Bowling Green State University beginning in August 1980. I was thus fortunate to learn from and collaborate with Ray Browne and his colleagues at the Popular Culture Center, which was at the epicenter of a new and emerging field of study at the time.

Over the years, I've served as area chair for film and television studies, governing board member of PCA and ACA, second vice president of ACA, vice president/president elect of ACA, President of ACA, and editorial board member of both the Journal of Popular Culture and Journal of American Culture. One of my greatest professional joys has been the opportunity to be a member of the advisory board (1982-84), associate editor (1984-91), senior associate editor (1991-98), and co-editor (1998-present) with Michael Marsden of the Journal of Popular Film and Television.

Currently I am on the Endowment Committee and the Governing Board of PCA/ACA. In the latter role, I chaired the speakers task force, the employee evaluation task force, the Article XVII/executive director transition committee, and served on the elections committee. In 2015, I was elected chair of the governing board.

Vision Statement for the Position

Suffice it to say, PCA/ACA has been an integral part of my professional life. The vision we all share begins with Ray Browne and his contemporaries. Ray threw the proverbial pebble in the lake, causing what to many traditionalists was an impudent and inappropriate splash, followed by a ripple effect of concentric circles that continues today.

I was probably part of the third or fourth wave, a cohort who took for granted that popular culture was an idea whose time had come. Following in the footsteps of Russel Nye's Unembarrassed Muse, my generation was never in the least bit embarrassed by the study of popular culture. We took for granted that popular culture was a legitimate scholarly discipline. In that way, we are all Ray's professional children.

The charge I see in my duties and responsibilities as a governing board member is to uphold as well as update the democratic and welcoming spirit that has always been at the heart of PCA/ACA. I am committed to an association that is diverse, multicultural, inclusive, global, and ecumenical in its support and promotion of popular culture.

I believe PCA/ACA should be a catalyst for innovation in popular culture pedagogy and scholarship. It should strengthen its alliances with regional and international popular culture associations; and reach out and collaborate with other professional and scholarly groups that also study popular culture. I also see my charge on the governing board as being a careful steward of PCA/ACA's financial resources and a responsible caretaker of its ongoing legacy.

Thank you for your time, attention, and consideration.

Best wishes and see you in San Diego,
